ALI TROPHY | QUARTER-FINAL | IBO WORLD TITLE

A New Year Is Less Than 90 Days Away.

But the landscape, as it pertains to the International Boxing Organization at least, is already changing.

In fact, a quick glance at the IBO's roster of world champions indicates just how much the times have changed and how quickly the future is barreling in.

No fewer than four new members of the belted fraternity of new IBO champions have still not celebrated their 30th birthdays, yet each of them has already begun to make a mark in their given weight class.

The biggest of the group – prodigious 27-year-old Anthony Joshua – has held the IBO heavyweight title since a stirring TKO defeat of Wladimir Klitschko in April that seems certain to rake in the lion's share of 2017's "Fight of the Year" votes.

The affable Englishman is also a former Olympic gold medalist (from the 2012 Summer Games in London) and has established himself as one of the sport's most popular and marketable stars while winning by stoppage in each of his first 19 pro fights.

He's scheduled to defend against No. 3 contender Kubrat Pulev on Oct. 28.

"We know he's got all the potential in the world and we believe the U.S. audience will find him very, very interesting," said Showtime boxing boss Stephen Espinoza, whose network paid big money to land exclusive rights to show Joshua's fights in the U.S. "Whether he's an all-time great remains to be seen, but he's certainly one of the most interesting fighters today."

One division down the ladder, a cruiserweight is making some noise.

On Sept. 9, just four months past his 25th birthday, South African southpaw Kevin Lerena became a first-time world champion when he defeated rugged contender Yuri Kalenga via split decision at the Emperors Palace venue in Kempton Park.

Lerena got the decision to earn the vacant belt – previously held by such luminaries as Antonio Tarver and Roy Jones Jr. The win bumped Lerena to 19-1 since he turned pro in 2011.

"I've started coming into my own, discovering who I am as a fighter," he said. "Things are really starting to click. I've had six years as a pro and haven't looked back. It's all about accumulating experience, learning the lessons. I'm evolving as a boxer."

Another division down, another British star is rising.

Twenty-eight-year-old Chris Eubank Jr., whose father was a two-division title claimant in the 1990s, has become one of the year's fastest risers since claiming the IBO title and successfully defending once.

He downed the reigning super middleweight kingpin via 10th-round TKO in February, then returned with a near-shutout unanimous decision over veteran former world champion Arthur Abraham on July 15.

Those victories improved him to 25-1 with 19 KOs.

Another defense, against No. 6 challenger Avni Yildirim, is set for Oct. 7, and Eubank got some of his preparation while taking part in Floyd Mayweather's pre-Conor McGregor training camp.

"I'm aiming for the stars," Eubank said, "to be vicious and strong in the ring, and to reach the peak of my powers."

The youngster of the quartet, Russia-based super featherweight Shavkat Rakhimov, is a relative novice at age 23 and with only 11 fights – but his title belt is no less shiny.

He went the 12-round distance for the first time in his brief career on Sept. 9 at the Traktor Sport Palace in Chelyabinsk, and emerged with a one-sided verdict over Emanuel Lopez to win the vacant crown.

The scores were 118-110, 116-112 and 116-112.

It was just the third fight to go the distance since his 2015 debut and the first time he had to go past the sixth round.

"Boxing is a cyclical sport and this is a time when young fighters are getting important things accomplished," said Ed Levine, the IBO's president. "These fighters are beginning their paths to becoming super stars and we're proud that they're wearing IBO world title belts while they are on this journey."

The ratings are published monthly via internet or the website by the I.B.O. All rights reserved. Although the ratings are based on sources which are believed to be reliable, accuracy cannot be guaranteed. These ratings are the official ratings of the I.B.O. The use by others should be considered for information purposes only at the user's discretion. The ratings are produced by the collation of information based on results of fights. Points are allocated for winning fights the number determined by the quality of opponent. Fighters are normally considered inactive when they have not fought in one year unless currently scheduled to fight. We rate the boxer in the weight class where we feel he is most likely to compete. If we are missing fights of a boxer or are publishing incorrect information please contact us. If you feel your boxer should be rated higher and he has beaten a fighter now rated higher than him in the last 12 months please contact us, iboratings@aol.com.
